The body of the index is a list of scripture references, from Genesis to Revelation, followed by references to the page or pages where the scriptures are handled in each of the books. The book titles are represented by abbreviations, which are listed in the index's introduction. The page references are from specific editions and printings of the books, which are also listed in the introduction. The references can usually be found within a few pages in other editions or printings of these titles. In the back of each of the books listed above is a scripture index that will give you the exact page number where the verse is located in the particular edition or printing you are using.
